Let's Knit The Toph Hat Together

workshop outline

I'm famed for my sideways knit Hats, especially short-row colorwork ones. If you've been itching to try one but haven't quite taken the leap yet, then this class is for you. Together we'll work through the Toph Hat, my most famous sideways knit short-row colourwork Hat. I will demonstrate the key techniques—provisional cast-on, German short rows, grafting garter stitch—and get everyone started on the first panel of their Hat.

Topics covered
Participants will work through a number of different techniques, including short rows, provisional cast-on and grafting garter stitch.

Class structure
This is ideally a 6-hr in-person, or a 4hr virtual teacher led class, but can be condensed to a 3hr in-person, or a 2hr virtual, class. I will demonstrate the required techniques, and work through the first panel with participants. Participants will then go on to finish the Hat in their own time.

Materials and equipment
2 x 100g skeins of contrasting yarn in DK weight, and 3.25mm or 3.5mm needles.
Participants will also need a crochet hook, some waste yarn, and a tapestry/darning needle.

Handouts
Workshop notes covering all of the techniques, photo tutorials where applicable, will be provided.
